

My right as a private citizen of the State of New Jersey to block unwanted calls from coming into my home should not be superceded by a corporation's right to make these calls to my home. I do not want them coming into my home and invading my privacy and disturbing my peace and quiet. You people (the FCC) have already determined that radio and TV shows may not enter people's homes without restrictions when people have the ability to control what comes into their homes with an on/off switch. Therefore it would be hypocritical of you to now take this stand to allow marketeers free access to invade our homes when we do not want them and have no on/off switch to control them. Do not strike down the New Jersey anti-telemarketer law - it is working for us.
